

Northwestern University is seeking qualified applicants for a Health Educator, with special expertise in the areas of sexual assault prevention and sexual health education.

Specific responsibilities include:

- * Developing, promoting, marketing, implementing and evaluating programming targeted to the reduction of sexual assault and the promotion of healthy sexuality.
- * Assuming a leadership role in coordinating the University's response to sexual assault including development of a sexual assault task force, improvements to the University's sexual assault reporting options.
- * Serving as a resource and advocate to individual student victims of sexual violence.

Minimum Qualifications:

- * A master's degree or the equivalent combination of education, training and experience from which comparable skills and abilities may be acquired.
- * Experience with primary and secondary prevention initiatives in college health.
- * Experience developing and/or delivering sexual health education and sexual assault prevention programming.
- * Experience in a college or university setting.
- * Ability to prepare and effectively deliver education programs and materials to university students.
- * Ability to collaboratively partner with a multitude of stakeholders, on-or off-campus.
- * Demonstrated commitment to diversity.
- * Excellent communication (written and verbal) as well as general interpersonal skills. Specific Responsibilities:

For more information, see requisition #14439 at:
<http://www.northwestern.edu/hr/jobs/>

Mail, email or fax cover letter, resume and names of three references to:
Michele Morales, M.S.W., Ph.D.
Director of Health Education
Northwestern University
Health Service
633 Emerson Street
Evanston, IL 60208-4000
Fax: 847-467-3090
mem@northwestern.edu

Application review will begin May 1, 2009 and continue until the position is filled.