

University of South Florida Associate Director of Student Health Services

University of South Florida (USF) is one of the nation's top 63 public research universities and one of the 39 community-engaged public universities as designated by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. The University serves more than 45,000 students with more than 219 degree programs at the undergraduate, graduate, specialty, and doctoral levels, including the doctor of medicine, on campuses in Tampa, St. Petersburg, Sarasota-Manatee, and Lakeland. USF provides the opportunity to experience intellectual energy in a cutting edge environment while enjoying the rich opportunities and countless advantages provided through living in the Tampa metropolitan area.

Student Health Services (SHS) is staffed by licensed professionals who provide primary ambulatory health care to the approximately 35,000 registered students attending the Tampa campus of the University of South Florida. In addition, SHS maintains a day infirmary, pharmacy and laboratory; administers the student health insurance plan and international student health insurance mandate through a contractual arrangement with an outside underwriter; administers the immunization and medical history requirement for matriculation as per Florida Administrative Code; and, provides preventive health and wellness information and programs to USF students both directly and collaboratively with other units in USF. Through these functions SHS improves the health status of students to increase their capacity for development, learning and achievement in and out of the classroom. The SHS budget exceeds $8.5 million.

The Position

The Associate Director of Student Health Services (SHS) will report to the Director, Clinical and Medical Services and will share oversight and leadership responsibilities for the clinical areas of SHS. The successful candidate will assist the director with departmental operations and provide immediate oversight and ensure functionality of all clinical services, including workflow and relationships. The Associate Director will also assist in hiring, supervision, development, and performance management of staff to deliver high quality health care services and attract and retain a workforce that is diverse and motivated. Additionally, the successful candidate will assist in the evaluation and effectiveness of the health care delivery system via participation in the SHS quality improvement/accreditation activities including peer review, clinical and administrative evaluations, risk management and learning outcomes assessment. This position also serves as a member of the medical staff and provides, per community standards, the full scope of sensitive medical practice necessary for the provision of care to a diverse university population.

Qualifications

The successful candidate will be an ARNP or PA and possess a master's degree in a related health care field. The ideal candidate must have at least 5 years of related professional experience, preferably in an accredited college health setting. The ideal candidate will have excellent interpersonal and communication skills with the ability to relate to a culturally diverse university student population, medical professionals, support staff and administrators and faculty; strong organization and supervisory skills; project management skills with initiative and the ability to multi task; basic understanding of computer and web-based information technology systems as SHS moves towards electronic medical records; and strong clinical leadership, planning, organizational and teaching skills.
